

Renowned cellist
Jacqueline Choi

Renowned cellist will perform at Brethren Village

Since her concerto debut in Seoul, Korea at age 12, her rise to fame in her field has been nothing short of meteoric. Cellist Jacqueline Choi, the 1st place winner of the 2010 Edwin H. and Leigh W. Schadt String Competition, is an active soloist, recitalist, and chamber musician sought after in the United States and abroad.

Choi will be the featured performer in a concert on Nov. 13 at 3 p.m. at Brethren Village in the Wolfe Auditorium, 3001 Lititz Pike.

As a young teen, Choi was invited to solo with the Boston Symphony, Bucheon Philharmonic, Boston Landmarks, Allentown Symphony, and New England Conservatory's Chamber Orchestras, and toured Brazil and Venezuela as a soloist with NEC's Youth Philharmonic

Orchestra. She recently made her Paris debut with an all-French program at the Musée du Louvre in France, and played in the Kumho-Asiana Rising Star Series in Seoul, Korea.

One of the staples of her recital programming is the inclusion of her own transcriptions of 19th century songs, such as those of Brahms, Liszt, Schubert, Schumann, and Strauss.

In addition to a rigorous concert schedule, Choi is currently pursuing her Doctor of Musical Arts degree at the Manhattan School of Music in New York City. She completed her Master of Music degree at the Juilliard School and her Bachelor of Music degree at the New England Conservatory in Boston.
